

Ronald O. Perelman Department

Medical Toxicology Fellowship

Second Year Fellows

Class of 2024

Marlis Gnirke, MD

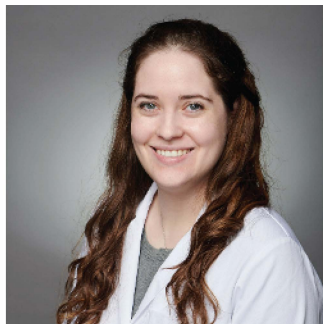

Hometown: Boston, MA

Residency: New York University School of Medicine/Bellevue Hospital

Medical school: Albert Einstein College of Medicine

Areas of interest/Hobbies: Cross Country, Indoor/outdoor track, Drawing, Painting, Play flute and Guitar

Why I chose NYU Langone: I feel fortunate to be training in emergency medicine here at NYU/Bellevue, an institution with a rich presence of toxicologists. Throughout residency, I have found myself drawn to our toxicology attendings and their impressively expansive knowledge of medicine, and I quickly realized that they are the attendings I most hope to emulate in my practice of emergency medicine. In a field sometimes regarded as reflexive, toxicologists maintain a careful and deliberate practice, at once thorough and targeted in their management.

Samantha S. Klein, MD

Hometown: Westhempstead, NY

Residency: Jacobi/Montefiore – Albert Einstein College of Medicine

Medical school: Albert Einstein College of Medicine

Areas of interest/Hobbies: Brown Belt in Tora Dojo Karate, Certified Scuba Diver, Volleyball, Snowboarding, Hiking

Why I chose NYU Langone: The field of Medical Toxicology is where I want to make my mark. It epitomizes the “how and the why” that I have always been striving to understand and the intellectual curiosity that has fueled me. How and why do certain drugs affect the body? How can I potentially counteract those effects? It is a field that embodies everything I have been working toward during my medical career. I feel as though my interests, skills, and experiences have all brought me to this point where I am excited and ready to delve into the world of toxicology.

Kyle D. Pires, MD

Hometown: Potomac, MD

Residency: Yale Emergency Medicine

Medical school: New York University School of Medicine

Areas of interest/Hobbies: Piano, Snowboarding, Bouldering, Sport Climbing, Lead Climbing, Building Computers, Esports and Cooking

Why I chose NYU Langone: Practicing as a resident in Emergency Medicine (EM) has been rewarding and specialty-reaffirming. Providing quality care for those most in need requires a robust depth of knowledge, calm efficiency, and procedural competence in the face of potentially moribund patients. While this truly gives me a sense of meaningful accomplishment, I have found myself seeking an area of expertise and in-depth thinking to balance the often chaotic and quickdraw approach that the Emergency Department (ED) demands.

Jason Dietz, MD

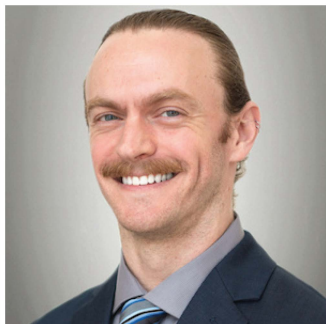

Hometown: Los Angeles, California

Residency: Mount Sinai Morningside, Mount Sinai West, and Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Hospital

Medical school: University College Cork Medical School,

Areas of interest/Hobbies: Scuba Diving, Ice-climbing, Backpacking, Woodworking/Furniture Construction, Sheet metal/Welding and Amateur radio

Why I chose NYU Langone: I was able to take part in the clinical toxicology rotation at New York City Poison Control Center. From the onset, I was enthralled. My goal is to expand the audience that we are trying to reach. I would love to extend the curriculum, resources, and partnerships beyond emergency medicine and into internal medicine.

Roger Rothenberg, MD

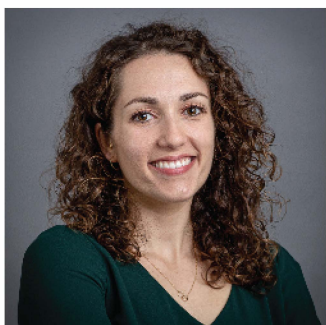

Hometown: Encinitas, CA

Residency: Cooper University Hospital

Medical school: California Northstate University College of Medicine

Areas of interest/Hobbies: Rock climbing, Visual arts, Outdoors, Music and Reading

Why I chose NYU Langone: I am fortunate to have spent my elective time over the last month with the NYC Poison Control Center exploring this interest, and ultimately crystallizing my decision to pursue it. Discussing toxicological cases reignited the curiosity that drove me through medical school. Weekly journal clubs were an opportunity to hone my skills reading medical literature with a discerning eye and writing letters to the editor. The classic experimental studies we read exposed the elegant foundations underlying the medical knowledge I have been building over the last six years.

Hannah St. Francis, MD

Hometown: Toronto, Canada

Residency: New York University School of Medicine/Bellevue Hospital

Medical school: New York University School of Medicine

Areas of interest/Hobbies: Hiking/backpacking, Rock climbing, Plant-based cooking and eating, Road trips, Yoga, Farmers' markets, Animals, Crossword puzzles, Skiing, Indoor Gardening, Finding the cutest Airbnbs, Spending time with my husband, baby, and dog

Why I chose NYU Langone: My seven years of medical education at NYU/Bellevue has shown me that it would be an amazing place to pursue these goals. It would be a privilege to continue learning from our legendary faculty whose collective knowledge is unparalleled and whose dedication to education is what inspired my interest in toxicology. The diversity of our training sites, which so enriched my learning throughout residency, would be a tremendous asset to my toxicology education.
